

TABLE OF CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION: A Literary Career in the Context of the
	Postwar	15
1	Continuity, Discontinuity and the Intention of Texts	17
2	Biographic Outline	34
I	Values in Postwar ( sengo ) Japan	42
1	The sengo Term and the Principle of the New Beginning	42
1.1	Values Associated with sengo	43
1.2	The Significance of Literature in sengo	48
1.3	Sengo as a Faction	50
1.4	Sengo and the Generation Question	56
1.5	Periods of sengo	60
1.6	Summary: the Significance of sengo for Literary Ideology	63
2	Issues of Cultural Self-Definition in Literary Debates	64
2.1	The Debate on Subjectivity	65
2.2	The Debate on the War Responsibility of Writers	72
2.3	The Debate on Politics and Literature	77
2.4	The New Japan Literature Association and Jinmin Bungaku	83
2.5	Summary: Factions and Range of Positions	106
3	Paradigms, Variances and Changes	109
II	Abe Kōbō's Activities in Artists' Organizations	111
1	The Pre-Communist Phase, 1947–1950	114
1.1	Kindai Bungaku	114
1.2	The Beginnings of The Century	125
1.3	The Night Society	135
1.4	Summary	150
2	In the Party Mainstream, 1950–1955	150
2.1	The Century after Reorganization	151
2.2	Communist Party Activities	160
2.3	Jinmin Bungaku	173
2.4	The Present Society	190
2.5	Summary	207

3	In the United National Movement Executive, 1955–1962	207
3.1	New Japan Literature Association Organs	208
3.2	The Society for Documentary Art	221
3.3	Abe’s Expulsion from the Communist Party	235
3.4	Summary	247
4	Developments in Abe’s Literary Commitment	248
III	The Rhetoric of Abe’s Essays	254
1	Introduction: Claims of Consistency in Epilogues	256
1.1	With the Heart of a Beast and a Hand Like a Calculating Machine (December 1957)	256
1.2	The Philosophy of the Desert (October 1965)	261
1.3	To Mark the End of the Road (December 1965)	268
2	From Artistic to Social Revolution: Essays 1948–1950	272
2.1	“The Moment of Creativity” (September 1948/May 1949)	273
2.2	“Fresh Words” (May 1948)	281
2.3	“A Critique of Surrealism” (August 1949)	286
2.4	“Literature and Time” (October 1949)	296
2.5	“The ‘Art of the Revolution’ Must Be the ‘Revolution of Art!’” (July 1949)	307
2.6	“The Destiny of Art” (June 1950)	310
2.7	Summary	317
3	A Voyage of Discovery into the Masses: Essays 1952–1954	319
3.1	“The Pockmarked Muse” (October 1952)	320
3.2	Texts Dealing with the “Folk Literature” Movement	331
3.2.1	“A Contribution to the Discussion on Folk Literature” (November 1952)	332
3.2.2	“Summing up the Doctrine of Folk Literature” (May 1953)	338
3.3	“The Course of the Literature Movement” (April 1953)	340
3.4	“Maps of Maps” (April 1954)	353
3.5	Summary	363
4	Transition – Two Essays Republished after 1955	364

4.1	“With the Heart of a Beast and a Hand Like a Calculating Machine” (February 1955/December 1957)	365
4.2	“First the Dissecting Knife” (September 1955/December 1957)	382
4.3	Summary	388
5	Social Commitment in the Mass Media Age: Essays 1956–1960	394
5.1	Texts Associated with “Neo-Documentarism”	395
5.1.1	“On the Spirit of Documentation” (May 1958)	395
5.1.2	“A Case for Neo-Documentarism” (July 1958)	399
5.2	Through Eastern Europe (September–October 1956/February 1957)	407
5.3	“Artistic Revolution. A Theory of Arts Movements” (September 1960)	427
5.4	Summary	440
6	Looking Back	442
6.1	““Songs of Despair”” (June 1962)	447
6.2	“Writing with an Eraser” (February 1966)	457
6.3	Summary	461
6.4	Developments in Abe’s Essay Writing	462
CONCLUSIONS: The End of an Era?		465
1	Values and Norms	465
1.1	World View	465
1.2	Continuity, Discontinuity and Mediation	468
1.3	Discourse and Isotopy	472
2	Abe as an Activist and Organizer	476
2.1	Position on the Place of the Artist in Society	476
2.2	Institutions and the Revolution	477
2.3	Institutions as Mediators	478
3	The Postwar Issues of Subjectivity	480
3.1	Politics and Literature	481
3.2	“War Responsibility”	482
3.3	Subjectivity	483
4	The New Beginning, New Beginnings, Snake’s Legs, and The Void	484

Table of contents

---

Appendix	487
Tabular Chronology	487
Citation List	490
Texts Cited by Name or Acronym	490
Texts by Abe Kōbō Consulted	500
Name Index	503